SOAP OPERA WEEK

By Nancy M. Reichardt
NEW YORK — Everyone knows that a change in head writers usually means a change in the cast list for a soap opera. "Search for Tomorrow" recently lost two actors since the scripts of head writer Harding Lemay have aired. One was Patricia Estrin Arrants (Jamie Adamson). Although rumors flew that Patricia's husband Rod Arrants (Travis Sentell) would leave if his real-life wife was axed, the popular actor was still on the roster as of this writing. Also exiting "SFT" was Lewis Arlt (David Sutton), who elected not to renew his contract. Lewis is still acting, however; he's been appearing in the Broadway hit "Piaf" since that show first arrived on the Great White Way. "Another World" regulars were undoubtedly delighted to see the return of veteran soap actress Anne Meacham to her long-time role of Louise Goddard, the Cory housekeeper. Anne had been written out of the script several months ago along with some other cast members. Added to the "AW" cast was James Horan as Clarice's brother, Denny Hobson. ... Everyone on the "Days of Our Lives" set is very excited these days. The show has signed none other than famed actor-director Robert Alda, for the role of Stuart Whyland. Alda is portraying David Banning's boss, who has moved to Salem and taken over the job of hospital administrator, a position Tom Horton has been trying to fill for some time. This is Alda's first role in a daytime drama. When asked whether he was adjusting to life as a soap opera actor, he said, yes, "but the early morning rehearsals and long days on the set took some getting used to." Robert Alda is the father of "M*A*S*H" star Alan Alda.

When Taro Mayer joined "Another World" as Melissa, I was sure I'd seen her before. Didn't she portray a showgirl who worked for Jordan Scott before she took some kind of pill overdose? — M.R., Lisbon, Me.
How observant of you. Yes, Taro did portray the showgirl you mention, but the "AW" folks were hoping that no one would notice when she returned as Melissa. As sometimes happens when a day player catches the eye of viewers as well as casting people, their work leads to a regular role on the soap.
