The rape of a 14-year-old girl is the theme of a special two-part series of "Little House on the Prairie," to be rebroadcast July 6 and 13 in the programs regular Monday time period.

Michael Landon, who wrote and directed this episode, says, "We're dealing with the traumatic effect of rape on the girl — who is somehow made to feel that she did something wrong — and the reaction of others as she is smothered in a world of gossip and confusion."

George Osmond will be played by Joe Bottoms, who had roles in NBC's "Holocaust" and the motion picture "The Black Hole." Production began in early June, with most of the filming to take place in Provo, Utah.

New Masterpieces

The Emmy award-winning series "Masterpiece Theater" will launch its second decade beginning Oct. 4, with the six-part dramatization of Nevil Shute's best-seller, "A Town Like Alice."

The various productions of the weekly series, which is sponsored by Mobil, will take viewers from the war-torn jungles of Malaya to an untouched African Eden, from the pleasures of royalty to the foibles of would-be movie tycoons.

"A Town Like Alice" will be the first Australian production ever presented on the PBS drama. Starring Bryan Brown and Helen Morse, and filmed on location in Australia, Malaya, Scotland and London, the movie tells the story of two prisoners of war whose romance begins during the Japanese take-over of Malaya and ends in the Australian outback.
