

Critters convene for show

Got an unusual pet of some kind? It could be an award winner.

Animals of all kinds will be gathered Monday, July 6, at the Cedar Ridge playground for the annual Sandy Mountain Days Pet Show.

The only requirement for the pets is that they have legs. Sorry, snakes are out.

Most of the pets each year are dogs, and there are numerous categories. There will be prizes for mutts, purebreds, tricks and obedience and most well-behaved dog.

There will also be prizes for the smallest dog, the shaggiest, most colorful, skinniest, unusual, lovable, and most mischievous, not to mention a prize for the dog with the longest nose, the prettiest smile and the most feminine pooch.

And yes, there is an award for the most kissable mutt.

There is also a competition for cats with many of the same categories. But there will also be a prize for the most movie potential, so if your cat can act rings around Morris, you may have a winner.

The final category of pets will be miscellaneous, where anything with legs is eligible. In the past, that has meant rats, turkeys, cows, rabbits, horses, birds and hamsters.

The show is scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m.

Cows, as well as dogs, cats, rabbits, birds and other critters will be on hand at the annual Pet Show.
