SOAP OPERA WEEK

Soap actors combine stage with television

By Nancy M. Reichardt

NEW YORK — If you live near Sullivan, Ill., you still have all of this week to head over to the famed Little Theater in the Square to catch "As the World Turns" star Kathryn Hays (Kim Andropoulos) in "Same Time, Next Year." Kathryn's appearance is part of a local effort to promote theater productions in the area, which, in the past, has presented the talents of many soap stars.

"Search for Tomorrow" finally has a new Tom Bergman. The handsome actor chosen for the role is daytime newcomer Mitch Litrofsky. By night, Mitch is an understudy in the Broadway hit "The Elephant Man." Another new talent on the daytime scene, and also on "SFT," is Shawn Stevens who is portraying the role of Zachery, the new love interest for Wendy Wilkins. Shawn is slated to stir things up in an evil way.

Everyone, including producer Nick Nicholson and head writer Henry Sleser, was extremely pleased when "Edge of Night" was presented with the Mystery Writers of America Award recently. "EON" earned the Edgar Award for its excellent mystery/murder story lines, which have been presented to daytime viewers for the past 25 years.

"Texas" seems to be gaining some ground in the ratings race lately, and the cast and crew happily are getting ready to celebrate their first anniversary on Aug. 4. Hopefully, under the auspices of new producer, Gail Kobe, the show will have many more years ahead of it.

Ted Leplat

Ted Leplat (Andy Norris) and Carrie Mowery (Jackie Marler) on "Guiding Light" teamed up recently to run in a Hartford, Conn. charity marathon. The one-mile celebrity run is held each year and both soap actors reported that they were treated like royalty during their stay.

Also from "Guiding Light" comes the sad news that Lenore Kasdorf (Rita Bauer) has decided to leave the show. When the lovely brunette actress first left the show nearly two years ago to have her baby, she didn't plan to return but later reversed her decision. This time, however, Lenore is definitely taking off for the West Coast with her husband. In the story line, Rita will do her usual runaway number and leave town because of her affair with Alan. It hasn't been decided whether the role will be recast.
