Firefighters file complaints

By [Name] Staff
The union members of the Gresham Fire Department filed complaints with the Oregon Labor Relations Board on Monday.

The complaints, which were filed by the Gresham Firefighters Association, charge that the city has violated the terms of a collective bargaining agreement.

The union says that the city has failed to provide adequate training and safety equipment for its firefighters.

The city officials deny the charges and say that they are providing the best possible service to the community.
