SOAP OPERA WEEK

Films and TV for some soap stars

By Nancy M. Reichardt

NEW YORK — Leah Ayres (Valerie Bryson on "Edge of Night") recently completed filming a role in "Dead Ringer," a farcical rock and roll feature film which stars singer Meatloaf and Josh Mostel. The film should be released sometime in the spring of '82.

Rick Springfield, who is making hearts flutter among the viewers of "General Hospital" as Dr. Noah Drake, will make an appearance on the Cheryl Ladd special which is slated for the ABC '81-'82 season. Another guest on the show will be soap opera fan Carol Burnett.

to pop up in a film or stage production on either the East or West Coast in the near future.

Randy Hamilton (Rikki Dekker on "Texas") recently returned to his hometown of Massillon, Ohio, for a little rest and relaxation and a family visit but it didn't take long before the handsome actor's local fans got wind of his arrival. Randy, who also hosts ABC's "Kids Are People, Too," took it all in stride: He graciously talked with his fans and posed for pictures.

Two more exits from "Guiding Light" are Jarrod Ross (Phillip Spaulding) and Michael J. Stark (Joe Bradley). Both actors will be missed by their fans, especially Michael, who had gathered a large following during his relatively short stint with the show. Joining "GL" is Michael Tyle as the newly created character, Clint McCord.

By the time you read this column, Paul Keenan probably will have been written out of "Days of Our Lives" and his role as Tod Chandler. Also, since the show is getting new writers it's likely there will be other cast changes very soon.
