Make effort to prevent poisonings

Poisonings are generally thought of in the home as child killers, but actually the biggest toll is in the 24 to 44 year old age group, with those 15 to 24 close behind.

The answer to preventing poisonings involves proper labeling, organizing medicine chests and educating people about the dangers of mixing drugs and medicines that can strengthen each other's actions.

Every effort should be made to keep poisons out of the hands of children. Under-the-sink storage areas for lyes, cleaners, insecticides and disinfectants are an outright invitation to children. Keep only such of these materials as you actually need. Keep containers tightly closed.

The same applies to medicines.

The danger of carbon monoxide has been well publicized, however, large numbers of people still die every year from this cause. Automobiles are the primary offender. The motor should never be left running in a closed garage. Always leave one of the car windows open a crack, even in the winter. The exhaust and muffler may leak fumes into the auto interior.

Furnaces, heaters and stoves also are dangerous producers of carbon monoxide if inadequately vented. Having them checked regularly by qualified people can save your life now. Gas space heaters or stoves in tightly closed rooms may cause suffocation by using up all the oxygen in the room.

Suffocation is the most serious killer of infants and very young children. Children under four account for more than half of all deaths from suffocation. Choking on inhaled bits of food or other small objects leads the causes of deaths. Keep small toys, beads and other items that could lodge in the windpipe away from babies. Examine the toddler's solid foods for lumps and foreign objects. Smothering in bedding is also a home safety hazard. Cribs should be designed and bought so as to prevent strangulation and mattresses should not be too soft.
