The Hospice message continually spread

Mt. Hood Hospice spent two years laying groundwork for its operation, touching more than 55,000 area residents with its message.

Now that the health care service is operating, it is still spreading the word about hospice care.

A course, co-sponsored by Mt. Hood Hospice and Mt. Hood Community College, opens a 10-week session March 29. It's intended for persons who are interested in becoming hospice volunteers or who have a professional or non-professional interest in the concept of hospice care for the terminally ill.

It focuses on the sociological, physiological and psychological aspects of hospice care. Inquiry is made into various issues on dying, death and bereavement, with attention given to social processes, pain and symptom control and delivery of medical care. Family dynamics and philosophical and ethical questions are also addressed. Classes will meet each Monday from 7 to 10 p.m. at MHCC Room 1001.

Preregistration is recommended. Cost of the course is $30 or $5 per session. The opening class is "The Hospice Concept" which outlines the history and goals of hospice care.

"Terminal Illness—Medical Overview" will be discussed April 5. That will discuss life-threatening illness, disease process and treatment, the role of the hospice physician and pain control.

"Religion, Suffering and Suicide" deals with terminally ill attitudes toward suffering and suicide, stages of dying and man's concept of religion and the role of a spiritual leader.

April 19, the discussion will center on psycho-social needs, focusing on confidentially, active listening, establishing relationships and family dynamics.

Nursing will be focus on April 26 and May 3.

"Funeral and Closure" will be discussed May 10. That will center around funeral home visitation, types and expenses, burial and cremation, memorial societies, and organ and tissue donation.

The psychological and physiological aspects of death will be explored May 17 in "Dynamics of Death and Dying."

"Grief and Bereavement" is scheduled May 24. It deals with stages of grief, consoling the consoler, grief and self-identity, and bereavement as a life process.

An overview and panel discussion will close the class June 7.

County

"the net developable acreage" for Cedar Ridge to be 304 acres with 1,215 "ultimate units."

One of the developments, known as Brightwood Glen, is being proposed by Mortgage Bancorporation of Salem.

Proposed is 350 units in an area between Miller Road and Blue Jay Lane, which lies both north and south of Highway 26.

The developer's representative, Boatwright Engineering Inc., also of Salem, has already studied the drainage of the area.

They have proposed that the development's storm sewers be channeled into "recognized" wetlands administered by the Bureau of Land Management, located just south of the proposed subdivision.

A subdivision has been proposed by Carl M. Halvorson Inc., called Tillikum Woods, east of Miller Road and south of Highway 26.

About 500 units would be constructed on 200 acres.

All three developers of the subdivisions requested that this now-disputed area be included in the Hoodland Service District. This was after they met with county representatives on Dec. 26, 1979. Annexation was completed on April 6, 1980 by the Portland Metropolitan Area Local Government Boundary Commission.

The Alderwood site is to be visited today by the Clackamas County Board of County Commissioners.

They are going to view the area prior to rendering a decision on whether to allow a conditional-use permit for the development. That decision is to be made at a hearing to be held on March 8 at 9 a.m. in the chambers of the county commissioners.

Cook said that he did not know if the information collected Friday would be utilized by the commissioners in making their decision, but he said that it would be included in a revised draft of the Mt. Hood Community Plan.

A public hearing on the revised plan is scheduled to go before the Planning Commission on May 10 and before the commissioners on May 26.

Cook said that the revised plan will be submitted to the LCDC for approval the latter part of May.

Included will be the recognized wetlands and proper ordinance changes.

"If we did it right," said Cook, "then it (the Comprehensive Plan) will be acknowledged."

Insurance man voted to bank board

George L. Morgan was recently elected to the board of directors of Clackamas County Bank, replacing Paul Biggs of Oregon City.

Biggs retired after being associated with Clackamas County Bank for 40 years as counsel and director. Morgan is treasurer of Walrad Insurance Agency Ltd. He joined Walrad Insurance in 1964. He lives in Sandy with his wife, Marva.

Morgan has been active in numerous organizations in Sandy and Gresham, including the Sandy Kiwanis, Sandy Area Chamber of Commerce, Hoodland Chamber of Commerce and Gresham Elks.

He has been treasurer of the Oral Hull Foundation for the Blind since 1973, and chairman of the Sandy Economic Development Commission.

Morgan served in the U.S. Navy from 1944-1946. He attended Washington High School and Portland State College.
