

Add new touch to the old look

Accessories, the little touches that pull together new looks and update old ones, can take you anywhere from a pirate's lair to a heather-strewn moor this spring.

But be careful not to send mixed messages. The current fashion advice is to decide on an outfit's look and stay with it.

Here are some of the many accessories for spring and how to put them together:

— Legwear: Well-dressed legs are one step ahead. Varying lengths in skirts, pants and dresses are focusing interest on the leg and designers are responding with looks for everyone from the sock-loving teen to the fashion sophisticate.

Perhaps the most subtle look is achieved with translucent hose in colors that harmonize rather than contrast sharply with new hues. The idea is to carry the color right down to the toe of your low-heeled shoes. Legwear buyers say this is the look most business and professional women will adopt.

— Belts: They appear in all shapes and sizes this spring, cinching waists, sitting on hips, crossing over, curving, elongating the body or shortening the torso.

Metallics are the strongest trend in belts, with gold setting the pace for gun metals, bronzes, pewters and silvers to follow. A word of caution: don't overdo metallic accessories. A little goes a long way. Reptile skins are also popular.

— Jewelry: Classic pieces are always in style. Gold chains in both necklaces and bracelets, sometimes with small diamonds added, are popular basics. Earring collections are usually based around the simple gold ball and diamond studs for dressy occasions, rounded out by pearls.

Gold is still the No. 1 metal. Large gold beads often paired with other metals or faceted jet beads, are strung into short, bold necklaces, usually 16 to 18 inches in length.
