

Welches career day considered a success

The Parent-Teachers Association sponsored "career day" at Welches Grade School was a success, said Kathie McKenzie, one of the events co-organizers.

The career day, which was held last Wednesday, June 2, was the result of six weeks of planning by a joint committee comprised of both parents and school representatives.

The purpose of career day was to "broaden the students' horizons by bringing in some of the local talent we have on the mountain," said McKenzie. The idea also was to "create a feeling of community spirit."

Sharing their careers with the kindergarten through fourth grade classes were Sue Grandy, a cake decorator, Bob Freeman, a story-teller and writer, Debbie Saxton, dental hygienist, John McDougall, representing the Continental Telephone Company; and Archie "Speed" Wilson, a former test pilot.

Professional Dance Instructor Sharon Lameroux, who teaches at The Mt. Hood Dance School, had students accompany her in a sampling of dances.

Sgt. Dan E. Wolf of the Oregon State Police Government Camp Outpost utilized his patrol car in discussions of his job.

Carl Ostergren demonstrated the different stages involved in making toys. He also displayed his collection of "steam toys."

Sharing professions with the fifth through eighth graders were Linda Miller from Portland General Electric, Dr. Mike Moore, optometrist, Dr. Nancy Messerli, who works in the emergency room at Gresham Community Hospital, and Harpist Anita Bentz.

Auctioneer Tom Cox demonstrated the "gift of gab" necessary to his profession.

Frank Fraijo, who operates an auto body shop in Brightwood, demonstrated how the tools of his trade repair dented fenders.

Amber Furst, a lady race car driver who is ranked third in the Northwest region's formula Ford racing circuit.

Furst discussed some of the safety features of her car, which can attain speed of up to 130 miles per hour, and which cost $30,000 to build. It goes through a set of $500 tires each race.
