CAR CARE TIP OF THE DAY

Brakes. What's the proper maintenance procedure? Have lining and pads checked annually, replacing them and other brake parts when necessary (25,000-50,000 miles). Check hydraulic fluid level every six months and replace when needed. Bleed fluid and replace every 24,000 miles. The benefits are that these steps will prevent costlier major brake repairs and are vital to safety. To insure that the job is done right (an absolute necessity for brake work) take your automobile to a reputable mechanic.
