

Reigning queens aim for state title

For two young women on stage Saturday night at the Miss Mt. Hood Area Pageant, the evening will feel like a replay and a rehearsal.

The two are Kim McPhail, reigning Miss Mt. Hood Area, and Lilian Muff, Miss Metro East.

Saturday's pageant will feel like a replay because they were contestants last year. And it will feel like a rehearsal because in July they will compete for the crown of Miss Oregon in Seaside.

Lilian Muff, 19, is the daughter of Leonhard and Elvira Muff of Sandy. A 1982 graduate of Sandy High School, she attended Mt. Hood Community College and plans to continue her studies in advertising and public relations at University of Oregon.

Kim McPhail, 22, is a 1979 graduate of David Douglas High School. She is the daughter of Pat and Norma McPhail of East County.

Both queens will dance for their talent competition in the Miss Oregon Scholarship Pageant July 7-9 in Seaside. McPhail, who has taken dance for six years, will perform a jazz ballet number. It was her dream to be on Broadway that made her decide to enter the pageant.

"My dance teacher suggested it," says the brunette.

"I wanted to study at the University of Oregon but just didn't have the finances. This is a good way to receive scholarship money."

Lilian Muff's dream has always been to be Miss America.

"I watched the Miss America pageant on television and always said, 'gosh, I wish I could do that.' So now I'm trying," she says.

And, Muff adds, she believes the training for the pageant has helped her be more self confident.

"The training in poise, interviewing, being able to meet strangers I think will help me in job interviews," she says.

The reigning queens have helped teach this year's contestants their winning ways in rehearsals for the pageant.

They will also give a queen's farewell speech and walk before they give up their crowns and perhaps head for their next crown — Miss Oregon.
