PGE to help with heat pump loans

Homeowners can now easily get the heating, cooling and savings benefits of electric heat pumps under a new Portland General Electric Co. program featuring special financing, a customer hot line, and dealer certification.

"A high-efficiency electric heat pump uses less energy and costs less to run than any other conventional home heating source," says Don Lengacher, PGE general manager, marketing. "This program supports our commitment to finding ways the wise and efficient use of electricity can save our customers energy and money."

PGE will finance heat pumps for up to $7,500 and 10 years. Heat pump prices start around $2,500. Ducting, wiring, extended warranty on parts and labor, and electronic controls and air filters can also be included in the loan.

Loans will be secured by the heat pump equipment, and loan installments will appear on PGE's monthly billing. PGE plans to process loan applications within three days, and systems are expected to be installed within 30 days of approval.

Customer questions about heat pump heating and cooling are answered on PGE's new hot line, 1-800-443-PUMP, daily 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Canners to be tested here

Robert Nelson, a Master Food Preserver with the Clackamas County Extension Service, understands how people sometimes get tired of driving to Oregon City.

So he plans to bring the county's services to Sandy, where he lives. Nelson will be testing pressure gauges on home canners on Monday, Aug. 12 at the Sandy Senior Center. Interested persons need only take the lid with the gauge on it.
