High hopping

Pole vaulters Billy Olson of the U.S. and Sergei Bubka of the U.S.S.R. have been playing catch with the indoor pole vaulting record since the beginning of the year. Bubka finished on top, winning three out of five meets and setting the final record at 19 feet 6 1/4 inches.

Time out to study

Last fall Debi Thomas quit skating temporarily to concentrate on her pre-med studies at Stanford University. But in February she became the first black woman to capture the national women's title at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships.
