Fullerton returns to Hood View

Another friendly face has appeared at Hood View Junior Academy. Coming out of a short retirement, Vic Fullerton has been hired to finish the year as principal at the Christian private school in Boring.

"We feel lucky to get Vic," said Larry Caudell, school board chairman.

Dave Escobar, former principal, accepted a position as superintendent of education in the Michigan Seventh-day Adventist Conference, effective Feb. 23.

Fullerton has an excellent and varied background in teaching and administration at both the elementary and secondary level, according to Caudell. He also worked as associate director of education for the North Pacific Union of Seventh-day Adventists.

He will be working the four remaining months of the school year.

Vic Fullerton is the interim principal at Hood View Junior Academy.
