Young American®

VOL. 4 ISSUE 16 AMERICA'S NEWSPAPER FOR KIDS AUGUST 1987

NEWS FLASH

Quick U.S. kids

Early results are in. The first American students to take the physical fitness test given to kids in the Soviet Union proved good in running and swimming but poor in pullups. The test is part of a national program to promote fitness in the United States.

Governor lifts ban

Governor Dukakis of Massachusetts recently signed a bill allowing kids age nine and over to deliver newspapers in their state. The bill ends a 74-year-old rule which banned kids under age 12 from taking on a paper route.

Celebrating cats

The hit Broadway show Cats just celebrated its 2,000th performance in New York. Meanwhile, the touring version of the all-music show appeared in Portland, Oregon.

Dino eggs found

Geologist Robert Young really knows how to pick 'em. He spotted a pretty rock in western Colorado which turned out to be a dinosaur egg. The egg was shattered into several pieces but would have measured eight inches in length.

Cartoons speak out

Notice a change in the voice of your favorite cartoon character? Many of the actors who do the voices went on strike last month. They want to change their job requirement of having to perform up to three voices. A settlement is in the works.

Super sailboarder

Stephane Peyron of France recently crossed the Atlantic Ocean. Ordinarily that would not seem like a big deal, except Peyron traveled on a sailboard. His trip took 46 days and sets a new world record.

SUPER CELEBRATION

WARNER BROS. PHOTO

Superman is back, and this time he's on a mission to destroy the world's nuclear missiles in Superman IV: The Quest for Peace. (Above) Superman (Christopher Reeve) and Lois Lane (Margot Kidder) were created 50 years ago as comic book characters.

Run-D.M.C. raps to the top

The results are in for Young American's best bands with the best beat poll. Fans liked Beastie Boys and The Monkees, but they didn't make the top five. The top five favorites of those who responded to the poll are:

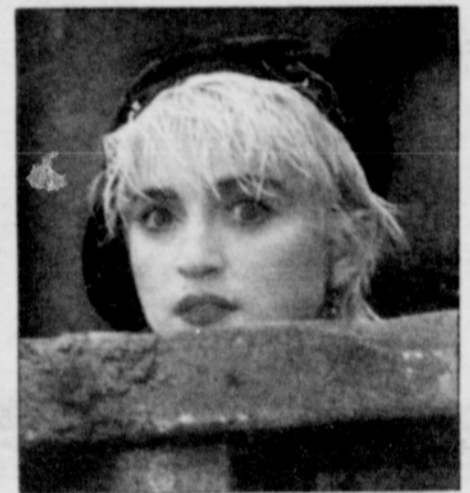

Band	Percentage
Run-D.M.C.	26%
The Bangles	13%
Whitney Houston	13%
Madonna	9%
Bon Jovi	9%

See nature's wild side

PORTLAND, OR — Touch a tornado or experience an earthquake. And do it without leaving the Nature's Fury exhibit at Oregon Museum of Science and Industry (OMSI).

One of the most popular parts of the exhibit is the Mount OMSI volcano. Climbers wear protective helmets and harnesses to scale the 14-foot volcano. "I really liked going up the mountain," said Courtney Madsen, 7.

OMSI's Nature's Fury exhibit closes October 31 and will probably travel to other museums around the country.

Madonna plays streetwise Nikki Finn.

That girl is Madonna

Pop music star Madonna takes center stage again, this time in Who's That Girl. She plays Nikki Finn, who just served a prison sentence for a crime she didn't commit. Neat-freak lawyer Loudon Trott (Griffin Dunne) is to drive her from the prison to the bus station in his Rolls Royce. But it isn't that simple.

Nikki makes the lawyer drive her from adventure to adventure as she tracks down the dude who gave her the bum rap.

Wild scenes are set to the beat of tunes including "The Look Of Love," "Causing A Commotion," "Can't Stop" and "Who's That Girl" written by Madonna.

The movie co-stars Murray, a 160-pound cougar. The cat finds he's in for one wild ride but handles each adventure in his own classy way. It's the Rolls that falls apart in the end.
