

A SNEAK PEEK AT FALL TV

The television networks are ready for the fall season with lots of new shows to try out.

From NBC — "A Year in the Life," starring Richard Kiley as the widowed father of a large family. The show is a serious drama produced by the same people who produced "St. Elsewhere."

"My Two Dads" stars Paul Reiser and Greg Evigan as two young men trying to take care of a 12-year-old orphan played by Staci Keanan.

From CBS — "Beauty and the Beast" is an hour-long fantasy action drama about a man/beast who falls in love with a beautiful woman lawyer (played by Linda Hamilton).

In "Frank's Place" Tim Reid is a college professor who inherits a restaurant in New Orleans and falls in love with a lady undertaker (played by Daphne Maxwell Reid).
