LOST THEORY CORNER. Welcome to Eugene Weekly's latest, and probably temporary, column. Today we discuss a theory of "the incident" that has changed the protocol at Station Three, "The Swan." According to the orientation film seen by Jack and Locke, an incident changed protocol at the station. The occupants must now enter the code 4 8 15 16 23 42 into a computer every 108 minutes. Why? That's where theory comes in. The incident is a civil war of some sort. As planned by the DHARMA institute, the island was an experimental facility with six stations, each concentrating on different fields of study. Sometime shortly before 1980, one of the stations made a grab for power, basically invading the other stations. The occupants of station three must now enter the code, the numbers of which correspond to the stations on the island. The act of entering the code reinforces an electromagnetic barrier or stasis field on the island. This field is unstable, so it must be reset every 108 minutes to prevent its full scale breakdown. Think your idea is better? What's the incident? Who are The Others? Send your theory to: theory@eugeneweekly.com Your theory could be printed right here!
