

reminds us of a better way by saying it's time to pull together and that it's time for new leaders to show us a way out of war, greed, and fear.

I am so grateful that I met Doc. He shows us that love prevails. Thank you Doc Hadley.

PERSONALS TALE

Recently I won a drawing for a weekend at the coast that I signed up for at your booth in the OSU Quad. I have booked my room at the Adobe Inn in Yachats for December.

I just wanted to say THANK YOU! to EW for this wonderful surprise. It just so happens that I won it on the fourth anniversary of the meeting of my boyfriend — who I met through the personals of the EW! You guys are the best! Keep up the good works and words! Shine!

OFF THE WAGON

The problem with having an ignorant

"president" (very possibly put into office fraudulently), and the horrendous, dreadful, and ghastly machinery behind the puppet, is that they can't see the forest for the trees; they have learned nothing from history.

Truth has existed since the dawn of civilized mankind, as well as its opposite. I believe that truth ultimately bolsters and supports the evolution of mankind. Its opposites, deceit, deception and delusion, will ultimately foster ruin for mankind. However, for some reason unbeknownst to me, the current administration seems to be running with the latter. Very possibly the immature "boy emperor" is drinking again. If this is in fact the case, then God help us all, as they say.

I leave you with two pertinent quotes: "Oh, what a tangled web we weave, when first we practice to deceive!" — Sir Walter Scott; and "Didst thou never hear that things ill got had ever bad success?" — William Shakespeare.
