Pink Martini Is Trying To Break Our Heart

Judging from reviews of their latest album, Hey Eugene!, there will soon be rumors that Pink Martini included the title track (invariably the most cringe-inducing PM track of all time) on their latest disc just so they could name the album after a medium-sized city in Oregon that adores them like no other — and whose ballet company collaborated with them on a multiple ovation performance last year. But the 12-piece Portland band will have nothing to do with Eugene this summer, treating us like an old flame who dumped them abruptly and later snubbed them at a party. Barring a late-minute addition to the Cuthbert or Secret House series, PM will be leaving us high and dry this summer. Oh sure, they'll still be nearby (playing Corvallis, Bend, Portland and Roseburg). We'll just have to travel to see them. Still, it hurts when PM continue to remind people that their title track — a jazzy throwback to early 1990s pop-funk — references a man in New York City (a man, we might add, who actually snubbed them ... or at least lead singer China Forbes). As for their new album: Yes, it rocks. Yes, it seduces. Yes, the songs are like a secret agent stealing your heart in Japan and then mailing it back to you from Portugal. Yes, you'll make the hour roadtrip north or south to see them. Because, like Meg Ryan's character in Sleepless in Seattle, Pink Martini is just waiting for us to meet them halfway. — Chuck Adams

The Fray, Meese, 6:30pm, Edgefield, Troutdale. www.mcmenamins.com or (800) 669-8610. $37.50 adv., $40 door.

Oregon Brewers Festival The craft brew festival hits 20 — almost old enough to drink! — this year. 72 breweries serve handcrafted beer to more than 50,000 beer lovers over the four days of this non-judging (all appreciating) event. Exhibits, seven on-site restaurants, a soda garden and vendors round out the hoppy good times. And getting there is easy and safe, even after you've had a few: The site is just blocks from Portland's lightrail line and offers free bike parking. Noon-9pm July 26-28 and noon-7pm July 29, Tom McCall Waterfront Park, Portland. www.oregonbrewfest.com or (503) 778-5917. Free admission; required tasting mugs cost $4 and each taste requires a $1 token (four tokens fill a mug).

Pickathon Roots Music Festival
Pickathon, the green-minded festival in unfortunately-named Boring, brings some of the best "indie roots" musicians from a fat handful of genres. This year, the festival's ninth, you can catch The Avett Brothers, Erin McKeown, Po' Girl, Jason Webley, Crooked Jades, Alela Diana, The Gourds and more. For those concerned about the environmental impact big festivals might have, Pickathon offers alternative transportation options, purchases carbon offset credits, books "conscious vendors" and emphasizes recycling — it also offers green beer, which you could read a couple of different ways, really. Bring hiking boots and instruments — Pendarvis Farm is laced with trails, and, the website says, "picking will be everywhere!" Aug. 3-5, Pendarvis Farm, Boring. www.pickathon.com $95, includes camping. Single-day tickets $50-$65. Parking/vehicle passes not included. Kids under 12 free.

Hugh Masekela, 7pm, Riverbend Park, Winston. www.riverbendlive.org or (541) 679-9732. Free.

Oregon Jamboree Oregon's big ol' country music and camping festival began when its founders traveled to see Wynonna Judd and asked if she'd help them out. Judd then appeared at the 1992 and 1993 festivals, which must have given the whole plan a kick in the pants — the Jamboree is now in its 15th year. Catch Trisha Yearwood, Dierks Bentley and Jo Dee Messina, along with a Neal McCoy, Aaron Tippin and plenty more. Aug. 3-5, Sweet Home. www.oregonjamboree.com or (541) 367-8800. $95 three-day admission; $65 one-day admission; camping pass is an additional $70.
