

Something Eug!

• EPA has classified Atrazine as a Class C carcinogen (possibly human carcinogen).

• Aerial spray applications are at risk of off-target drift movement.

It is foreseeable that, under these conditions, contamination of neighboring properties and/or groundwater could result from your application of Atrazine 4L in this vicinity.

The fears and concerns of your neighbors and the community at large are justified. In regards to human health hazards, research about Atrazine's powerful effects on the hormone system reveals disturbing discoveries. Research published by independent teams of scientists shows that Atrazine causes frogs to develop both male and female genitalia in a single animal.

We question why a Restricted Use Pesticide like Atrazine 4L is being used for this particular application in Lane County, just south of the Eugene city limits. The potential for harm is too great. For reasons stated above, we strongly urge you not to use Atrazine, not to spray aerially and to use manual labor to clear your timber of unwanted grasses.
