SOY NOT THE PROBLEM

In his letter (5/8) describing the ways that Paradise City Café is a green business, Norman Lent says, “My greatest green commitment is in reducing soy as much as possible.” Lent then explains that planting of soy causes deforestation. This argument contains a serious error. It is important to realize that all this soy being grown is to feed livestock, not people. When plants are fed to animals whose flesh, milk or eggs will be eaten, the amount of animal food produced is far less than the amount of plant food fed to the animals. The feed-to-meat ratio varies depending on species and location, but on average it is 4:1. About 80 percent of the crops grown in the U.S. are grown as livestock feed.

Therefore, the way to protect the rainforest is not to avoid soy, but to avoid
