

Something Eug!

soon collapse when diesel is too expensive to run the trucks. Surely, some vital bridges must be upgraded and repaired, but we must simultaneously create a rail-based public transportation system.

Rail is the "greenest" transportation on the planet. Even hybrid cars cannot compete with the efficiency of rail as public transportation.

We must demand a new rail line from Eugene to Portland now, or federal money will be siphoned into the coffers of the big paving industries' pockets once again.

We either transition off of our addiction to petroleum by going to rail, or we must prepare for a complete collapse of our whole economic system. Let the governor, congressmen and other elected leaders know what you think through local newspapers.
