FIELD BURNING BILL COMING

The Western Environmental Law Center in Eugene has kicked off its 2009 "Campaign to End Field Burning." In the near future, Rep. Paul Holvey will introduce a new bill banning field burning. Unlike Gov. Ted Kulongoski's bill, which proposes a phase-out, Holvey's bill will call for an outright ban. Holvey's last field burning bill was held up in committee and never voted on by the Legislature.

According to WELC attorney Charlie Tebbutt at the Jan. 16 kickoff at Davis' Restaurant, the campaign has only raised 22 percent of the funding that he says is really needed to stop the practice.

Sen. Floyd Prozanski and Reps. Chris Edwards and Nancy Nathanson attended the event, as did Commissioner Rob Handy and City Councilors Andrea Ortiz and Betty Taylor. Holvey briefly discussed his forthcoming bill, which he said will have fewer exemptions than Kulongoski's bill. Holvey said there may be an exemption in his bill for farmers in the Silverton hills who use field burning for red fescue and bent grass crops as well as an exemption for disease infestations, if burning is the only way to get rid of the disease and if the farmer can prove public health will not be affected by the burn.

Speakers also included Eugene pulmonologist Bob Carolan, who said of field burning smoke, "This is going to shock you — smoke in the air is bad for your health." Rural resident Holly Higgins spoke of the 50,000 Oregonians living in "sacrifice zones" that are affected by the smoke that is directed away from urban areas to their homes and farms. The affect field burning smoke has on rural Oregonians is one of the focuses of the anti-field burning campaign.

Why Choose an Organic Mattress ?

Memory foam mattresses, like most commercially available mattresses, are made from petroleum based polyurethane foam, an extremely flammable material, known as "solid gasoline" by firefighters. To prevent fires, manufacturers add chemical fire retardants, called PDBEs.

PDBEs may pose a greater danger than the polyurethane mattresses themselves, because they can pass right through your skin over the course of an 8 hour night, and have been linked to cancer and other illnesses. PDBEs have been banned in Europe. Their solution: sleep on natural latex mattresses... made from the latex sap of tropical rubber trees.
