BETWEEN THE BURIED & ME—PARALEX HYPERSLEEP DIALOGUES: introduces two human characters who live in different planes of existence, separated by millions of light years. Both characters make decisions that will change their lives, and perhaps the universe. The record has elements of aggression, beauty, quirkiness, and pure cacophony.

ROGER CLYNE/ PEACEMAKERS—UNIDA CANTINA: All my songs have that western stuff to them, and I wanted this to be the place where everyone could come together, Clyne said. The album will be the first with new guitarist Jim Dalton. Clyne said the bands sound has a similar vibe to The Refreshments, his former band of the 90s.

ELBOW—BUILD A ROCKET BOYS: 2011 album from the Manchester-based Indie Rock quintet, the follow-up to their Mercury Prize winning 2008 album The Seldom Seen Kid. While the lyrics are strongly influenced by singer Guy Garvey's childhood. Elbow's sound is as bold and grand as it has ever been. Includes the single 'Neat Little Rows'.

JOAN AS POLICE WOMAN—DEEP FIELD: A musician since she picked up a violin in the third grade, Joan began playing professionally immediately upon escape from her parents house. After the death of her boyfriend Jeff Buckley, she began to sing and write songs with some of Jeff's band mates in a project called Black Beetle.

PANDA BEAR—TOMBOY: Recorded at his studio in Lisbon, Tomboy sees Animal Collective member Noah Lennox stepping away from the sample-based parameters of his previous record and incorporating more guitar and synthesizer. The record is massive in its span of emotion, genre, and sound.

PENTAGRAM—LAST RITES: PENTAGRAM has proved time and time again that giving up is not an option. With the strongest lineup yet, a clean and sober Liebling, and 12 new tracks of pure classic metal coming to fans via Last Rites, PENTAGRAM are poised to conquer the masses and claim their rightful throne atop the metal mountain.
