Eugene's best known saxophonist, Paul Biondi has recently been diagnosed with small lymphocytic lymphoma and yet to be determined colon cancer. This is his second recurrence of a cancer. Paul may slowly fade from his professional performances and as such, unable to support himself in his most loved occupation. Paul has always been the first to step up to help others. And, at this stage of his life, as before, wishes to step up to showcase how those in the live music professions need help. Paul has asked that no special fund raisers be formed to help ONLY himself but to raise funds for his organization Musicians Emergency Medical Association. He hopes that his situation and that of Kenny Reed's recent medical issues and others indicate to the community how hard it is for the musicians and entertainers to support themselves when medical situations arise. Doug LaVelle of LaVelle Vineyards has volunteered his facility on July 20th to showcase Paul's talent with a group of masterful music to support MEMA on this wonderful Saturday afternoon in July beginning at 2:00 PM.
