Irene and Annie are cats of divorce. They first came to us in 2011. After a few weeks in the shelter, they were adopted together and became part of a family. Two years later, when their adopters fell out of favor with one another, Annie and Irene were no longer a welcome part of either of their lives. These cats are now 2 years older and find themselves homeless once again through no fault of their own. You can teach one or both of them that families come in all kinds.

Young pets are always a favorite of adopters. But our shelters have animals of all ages that need homes. Many are barely half way through their lives when they are written off as "too old." How can love be too old? Visit Greenhill Humane Society or 1st Avenue Shelter during Feline Fridays when adult cats are just $35. When you look into the faces of pets that need you, you will find that love is ageless.
