UO alum James Blue was Oregon's first Oscar-nominated director with 1968's A Few Notes on Our Food Problem, and he received the critic's prize for his feature Olive Trees of Justice at Cannes. "We feel like we found one of the greatest unsung American filmmakers," says Richard Herskowitz, director of the Cinema Pacific Film Festival. "All these accomplishments, yet somehow he's been forgotten." Not for long — the Blue family has bequeathed the filmmaker's archives to the UO. Cinema Pacific kicks off with a Blue archive opening ceremony 4pm Wednesday, April 23, at the Knight Library Browsing Room. Full Cinema Pacific schedule available at cinemapacific.uoregon.edu.
