Anyone who participated in last year's 72-Hour Horror Film Competition hosted by Bijou Metro and the Eugene Film Society (EFS), in which amateur and professional filmmakers vied to create a winning three-minute scary movie in just three days, can attest to the heady thrill of writing, directing and editing a short movie on the fly. On Thursday, Oct. 23, folks interested in all things cinematic are urged to attend this year's EFS 72-Hour Horror Film Competition Kick-Off, a meet-and-greet where you can pitch a script, talk movies or perhaps be recruited to act in a spooky movie or splatter flick.

Come on down and hobnob with local film types (including EW's Rick Levin, director of 2013 competition entry La Petite Mort, pictured) at the EFS kick-off party 5-8pm Thursday, Oct. 23, at Sam Bond's Brewing Co., 540 E. 8th Ave., where competing filmmakers will be given their mandated line of dialogue and prop for their short horror film.
