Working to save animals is heartbreaking as well as startlingly controversial. Some weeks the staff at Greenhill probably gets as many prickles as it does praise for its efforts to rescue and rehome Eugene's pet population, from pitties to bunnies, but EW's readers voted it the Best Animal Nonprofit in a landslide. 1st Avenue Shelter (formerly Lane County Animal Services), which Greenhill runs, got its fair share of votes, too. From Bark in the Park to its Art for Animals Auction (Nov. 7), Greenhill draws the public in with its events and fundraisers. Cascades Raptor Center, which is getting a lot of attention lately via local author Melissa Hart's new book Wild Within, flaps into second place, and SARA's Treasures (Shelter Animal Resource Alliance) raises funds through its thrift store to pull animals from shelters where they might otherwise be euthanized.
