CALENDAR

LIZA BARCLAY

The weather might be heading for the triple digits this weekend. Some people will retreat to the river, others to the coast and some will hurry to nearby Philomath for three days of watching riders ask thousand-pound hooved mammals to prance like dainty ballet dancers one day, then charge balls-to-the-wall over ditches, logs and oddly shaped immobile obstacles the next. It's time for the 18th annual Inavale Farm Horse Trials, a three-day event that kicks off Friday with dressage. The trials move on to cross-country events Saturday. This is the most spectator-friendly day (and the hottest in the forecast) with horses galloping at speed over logs, brush, ditches, water and more. Provided they tread lightly and stay out of the way, spectators are free to wander out on to the course to watch up close.

The horse trials run roughly 8 am - 5 pm June 26-28 at Inavale Farm, 31786 Horse Farm Lane, Philomath; FREE to watch.
