

The world lost an amazing artist a few months ago, when Newport-born Rick Bartow died at age 69. Bartow relied on graphite, acrylic paints, woodworking tools and more to convey things known, but unexplainable. His creations — hanging in galleries and museums around the country, including the Smithsonian and, for a time, the White House — are sometimes playful and vivid, and other times tormented half animal, half man mutations with flashing white teeth and wild pain in their eyes. To honor Bartow's life and work, the Oregon Coast Council has organized an exhibition titled Rick Bartow: A Community Collection, which opens Friday at the Newport Visual Arts Center and runs through August.

The public reception for Rick Bartow: A Community Collection runs 5-7pm Friday, July 8, at the Newport Visual Arts Center, 777 NW. Beach Dr., Newport; FREE.
