

Community Supported Shelters (CSS) will show The Lady in the Van as a benefit and to raise awareness about the many aspects surrounding homelessness. Bhavia Wagner, CSS board president, says the film fits the nonprofit's mission. "We help a lot of people that live in vans and cars that have lost their jobs." The nonprofit assists with many levels of support to help people become stable with temporary housing. "We're giving people support and helping them connect with services that move them out of homelessness," like rehabilitation options and helping people find dentists. She says the film is touching and likes that the main character played by Maggie Smith isn't rejected. "If Maggie Smith would have had a Conestoga hut, she would have been able to overcome homelessness."
