Halloween falls on a Monday this year, which is kinda shitty, but what can you do; it happens. Luckily, Eugeneans know that

Halloween is more state-of-mind than annual calendar blip. As such, the city and surrounding areas are crawling with Halloween themed activities. Here's a few: The weird and talented writers who make up the Stonecutters Union (which features some former and present EW staff) host a free and unnerving reading Friday, titled "Accidents: A Reading of Five," 7 pm at The Barn Light East, 545 E. 8th Ave. That same night, a small and unusual production company calling itself 1 ½ Blocks from Broadway informed us of "The Secret Horrors of The W.O.W. Hall" at 8 pm at 355 W. 8th Ave., also free to attend. At the Bijou Theatre, starting at 8 pm, catch the horror classic Nosferatu, with live music by Mood Area 52; tickets are $10. Cowfish, at 62 W. Broadway, hosts A Night to Dismember: Zombie Prom 10 pm Friday night; tickets are $3-$5. Ever wondered how bats got such a bad rap. And what's the deal with werewolves? Find out the answers to these questions and more at a free presentation by the UO Human/Animal Research Interest Group, called "Demons, Creatures, and Monsters: The Wonderfully Wicked World of Halloween Animals," which is scheduled to begin 3 pm Saturday at the Downtown Eugene Public Library. The Linn County Historical Museum in Brownsville screens Bela Lugosi's Dracula at 7 pm Saturday for only $2. At Springfield City Hall from 3:30 to 5 pm there's free Trick or Treat & Magic with illusions performed by Jay Frasier. The Willamalane Center (250 S. 32nd St., Spfd) is putting on its own Halloween Carnival, with spooky sports, carnival games and more, starting at 5 pm; tickets are $1-$5. Halloween wouldn't be complete without the All Hallows' Eugene festival, which features costume parades and contests for people and their pets, downtown storefront trick-or-treating and more family from 3 to 6 pm at the Hult Center. We're almost out of space and we've only scratched the surface. Comb through our calendar pages for a complete-ish Halloween weekend schedule. — Ben Ricker
