

Better Eugene-Springfield Transit is hosting “Abundant Access: Public Transit as an Instrument of Freedom,” a public lecture by author and international consultant Jarrett Walker. Walker is the president of Jarrett Walker + Associates and works in public transit policy and network design. Walker will talk about his network studies résumé, which includes Houston’s recently redesigned bus network, which has seen an increase in ridership. “In this engaging presentation, Walker leads us beyond the distractions that sometimes dominate transit debates, and focuses on understanding public transit’s core power: to give people freedom and opportunity as a city grows denser,” BEST says in a statement on the talk. Pre-registration is suggested as the event is expected to fill up.

“Abundant Access: Public Transit as an Instrument of Freedom” with Jarrett Walker runs from 4:45 to 6:45 pm Wednesday, Nov. 30 at the Downtown Athletic Club, 999 Willamette St., best-oregon.org/walker; FREE.
