

memorable experiences

If last year's "perfect gift" collects dust in their closet and they are just impossible to buy for because they own everything you think of, give them the gift of experience.

At Bounce Gymnastics they can twirl and glide through the air like graceful acrobats during Bounce's Aerial Yoga classes. Instructor Naja Rossoff says the classes are welcome to all ages (18-plus) and all athletic abilities, but suggests this not be your first workout class. Rossoff says that Aerial Yoga is a great way to stretch and reduce stress. Each yoga class' shavasana (final pose) is in a hammock — seriously, the workout ends with a catnap in a hammock. Purchase a single class for $15 or $72 for a six-class punch card; see bouncegymnastics.com.

For $50, you can snag a gift card to some of Eugene's finest restaurants. They'll say, "Oh, how sweet." Or you can take that same amount to Pepperberries, 2538 Willakenzie Road, and sign them up for a cooking class (or let them choose their own class with a gift card). There is an old saying that goes something like, "Buy a friend dinner, and they'll eat for a night. Give a friend cooking classes, and they'll invite you over for dinner again and again."

Teach that same friend to dance and they'll never be at a loss for what to do on a Saturday night. Track Town Swing Club offers an eight-week Lindy hop class for $40. Classes progress from week to week, taking a novice dancer to a bonafide swing dancer. In no time, they'll be doing the "sugar push" and you'll be left wondering what that even means.
