DIE ANTWOORD

Cold cheap beer and good live music — what more can one ask for during the Oregon summertime? Project Pabst is the one-stop shop for that and so much more. Although it transformed the beloved, multi-venue MusicFestNW into a more traditional, centralized festival in 2014, the more condensed style of Project Pabst is concentrated with huge name artists and of course, all the PBR anyone could ever want or need. The two-day, two-stage fest offers a lineup packed full of heavy-hitters like Iggy Pop, Beck, Die Antwoord and Nas. Located on the waterfront in Southwest Portland, Project Pabst is extremely accessible, near a ton of downtown bars and restaurants — although the festival offers “food and beer at reasonable ‘non-festival’ prices,” according to Pabst Blue Ribbon’s website. Along with catching all of your favorite bands, Project Pabst will feature booths from sponsors like Dr. Martens, Kettle Brand chips, Townshend’s Tea and Car2Go offering items for purchase and free swag. The festival is 21+, obviously, and takes place Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 26-27. For more info or to purchase tickets, visit portland.projectpabst.com. — Meerah Powell
