Hey Outlander fans and other lovers of all that is Gaelic, kick your Memorial Day weekend off with a visit to the Eugene Scottish Festival. Among other musical acts, the festival will feature the Celtic band Skweez the Weezye of southeast Washington. They will be on stage 12:30 to 1:45 pm and their repertoire includes traditional and original songs from Highland and Lowland Scotland, Ireland, Cape Breton Island, Brittany, Wales and the U.S. From 2 to 2:20 pm, spectators can experience what Scottish broadswords in action would have been like — giving some real life imagery of what William Wallace might have wielded when he led a resistance against English occupation. Don't forget about dogs, a key part of the festival. First, there's a dog parade 10:15 to 10:35 am, which is open to all dogs regardless of shape, size or breed as long as it's well mannered on leash. Then sheep dogs will demonstrate their skill in herding, insight as to how they were used in corralling sheep. The festival will also have organized games for children, horse-drawn wagon rides, highland games and Scottish foods.

The Eugene Scottish Festival 2018 is 9:30 am to 5 pm Saturday, May 26, at Irving Grange, located at 1011 Irvington Drive. $5 general admission, $15 families up to six people and children under 12 FREE. — Henry Houston
