Dear Friends and Patients:

Unexpected events have led me to the decision to close my practice in Eugene. My last clinic day will be in mid October. These three months will allow you time to make initial contact with another provider so that they can assume responsibility for your day-to-day healthcare. If you see me in October I will be able to refill your nonscheduled prescriptions for a year. That will give you more than enough time to get established with one of the other providers in Eugene and Springfield.

I am developing a plan that will enable me to continue prescribing homeopathically for you, a plan that includes a video conferencing module within a new patient portal. Those of you who choose to do so will be able to meet with me face to face via that portal on a month to month or every 2 or 3 months basis just as you do now.

I know this transition will be difficult for many of you, not only in the practical sense, the need to find another provider, but also in an emotional sense. It will be difficult for me as well. I have known many of you for more than 10 years and some of you for as many as 25 years. I have watched your children grow into adults and have children of their own. You have watched my children grow into adults as well. We have grown older together. I feel the same deep connection with you as many of you feel with me.

I will be recreating myself professionally and working in a native health clinic on Prince of Wales Island in far southeastern Alaska about 50 miles west of Ketchikan. This will be an exciting challenge that will segue me into my retirement years.

If you haven't seen me for a while make an appointment so we can tune you up. If you've been seeing me, please continue so that we can maximize your current status before I go.

Godspeed everyone.

Affectionately,
 Rodney Schaffer, MD
