CONGRATULATIONS DUE BHS SENIORS

Eight seniors, Tuesday won their diplomas, the right to enter any school of higher learning in this or any other state, if they care to continue their education. These seniors have accomplished the first step in life that is recognized universally.

To the senior class goes plenty of congratulations for its achievement—that of winning their diplomas. It is the hope of the Pilot that each of these young people have chosen a career, or will enter some trade soon, to prepare themselves for the years to come. What each individual choose is of less concern to the Pilot than the fact that each has chosen something, by and through which each will create an identity in the coming years.

Congratulations, Seniors, you deserve all the praise you have received, but do not lose sight of the fact that from here on, the work really starts. However, rest assured you have made the first step in that direction.

THEY DID AN EXCELLENT JOB

Praise, and plenty of it is due to the staff, headed by June Hassett, which edited and had printed "The Utopian," the first printed annual for Brookings High School. Perhaps from a college standpoint, or from the viewpoint of professionals, much criticism might be offered about its makeup, both physically and journalistically. Yet, on the other hand, these youngsters, only juniors in high school, and with no pattern to work from, did a creditable job — and certainly deserve plenty of credit for their efforts. Perusals of this annual will reveal that it is comprehensive in its scope—it tells briefly, the story of the school year—and well. Its biggest fault, perhaps were the pictures. Mostly snapshots, with little contrast, which is so necessary in good pictures, if they are to be re-produced through printing, some the expressions were not as good as they might have been—otherwise, little more can be asked.

ALL HAIL, AZALEA FESTIVAL QUEEN

All hail, Queen June Shrader, 1, who will reign Saturday, May 25, at the Azalea Festival. She was chosen queen for her popularity, through effort of friends who worked diligently through the P.-T. A. contest for her. And, from reports about the area, it was a wise choice, although any of the candidates would have been regal in the same role.

This Azalea Festival will mean lots to those girls, the court, in years to come, when they wish to recall days of their youth. The fact that queen was chosen for this festival sets a precedent for like festivals in years to come, and adds to the occasion something stately and much desired at such a time.

Seniors Enjoy "Last" Fling, Tues.

Following commencement exercises, Tuesday evening, a graduation party was enjoyed by Eddie Freeman, Bill Foltz, Victor Anderson, Gene Gould, Carroll Reekman, Eugenia Moore, Carol Lee Crockett, Rosie Potocnick, Frances Reekman, Ethel Pierce, Jim Carson, Betty Elston, Diane Burrell, Lucille Ellsworth, Doyle Rausch, Carl Foltz.

The young people were chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Burrell and Mrs. Mildred Foltz. The "gang" left Foltz' about midnight in five cars. Bruce Hole was decided on as the destination, and although it was generally believed that the weather would be clear, as it usually is, they had no such luck.

In fact it was termed as a PIC-dodge-the-drizzle-NIC. At six a. m. the group had a hearty breakfast of bacon and eggs and returned home about eight a. m.

If these people pursue their future endeavors as they braved the weather, surely there will not be any "failures-in-life" in this red-blooded-bring-on-wha-t-you may, happy-go-lucky gang.

Escaped Death As Car Rolls Over

Mrs. Alta Nelson, and son, of Seaside, Oregon, escaped death, as well as injury, Tuesday evening when their car broke a front axle and plunged off the road, three miles south of Carpenterville.

Mrs. Nelson said her son was driving at the time, and when the axle broke, and she saw the car was heading over the side of the road, she shut her eyes. The car, a 1937 Buick, turned over six or seven times before it came to rest, out of sight of the highway, at the bottom of the hill. Extricating themselves from the wreckage, the two climbed to the highway, where they were picked up by passing motorist and brought to Brookings.

They were headed for Marysville, Calif. The badly-damaged car was towed into Gold Beach Wednesday morning.
