

Fishing Gossip

By J. J. Gallagher

Visiting and local piscadors have turned in a nice score over the week-end. The weather was right and water was right, and Sunday was indeed a rare day in June for sport fishermen.

Archie McVay, trolling the holes near Doyle Garvins on the Chetco, took eight fine trout ranging from 10 to 16 inches long.

H. P. Cross, the man who is making it a harder job to count the chimneys in Brookings and Harbor, went up the Winchuck and came back with 13 finny, speckled beauties.

Harold Jesser and V. Schmeer went up the Chetco and brought home plenty of fish for supper.

There are lots more where they came from. Jesser and Schmeer also got several sea trout and a fine rock cod off the rocks.

The Sam Gott and C. H. (Bud) Rausch families went fishing off the rocks at Harris State Park, Sunday and brought in Rock Cod and plenty of sea trout. Max S. Brainard "came also" and took home about 20 pounds of sea trout the same day.

For free authentic information as to where to go and what it takes to get the big ones, see the writer—he always has time to "shoot the breeze" with fishermen.
