Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, saith the Lord, which is, and which was, and which is to come, the Almighty." Rev. 1:8.

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following correlative passages from the Christian Scientist textbook: "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "To grasp the reality and order of being in its Science, you must begin by reckoning God as the divine Principle of all that really is. No wisdom is wise but His wisdom; no truth is true, no love is lovely, no life is Life but the divine; no good is, but the good God bestows." (page 275).

come of the nation since has been scrapped as one the war measures, seems to be the sole topic of conversation among people this week. Somehow seems to ye ed that America survive and will emerge in a healthier condition, although pains surely will be felt.

businesses which look to the future will safeguard themselves by trying to do the right thing. Some will, now that no restrictions chafe them, will go wild but soon these same will find that they have themselves out of business. Some will rise, naturally, but not likely that extremes be felt except in congested areas of population where demands for certain commodities are great.

people should hold onto their savings—should watch with care, expenditures for "luxury" items on which prices are likely to skyrocket. Food prices will go up considerably, but on the other hand it is predicted, many more items which have not been on the list, will not appear. After a few months, after demands have eased, prices will gradually return to that level comparable to that level in other commodities.

only the American people as a whole should have enough common sense to survive this, since we were calm under conditions were trying during the months of war.

the spotlight is again focused on this area, through publication of Eddy's story in American magazine, and illustrated by our artist, Ralph Vincent. Copies of this are much in demand, and are being coveted by those able to obtain one.

June issue of "Farms Illustrated" published at Portland, contained two pages about the bulb industry at Brookings, together with the well-known picture of Joy McIndoe, in a lily field. This article, while it praised the industry, did a better job of selling the world the true picture of the industry than that of the "Lily" which appeared recently in Liberty. That article did more to hurt the lily industry than it did to help. The reverse, was with the buyers of the east.

For some reason, lilies of this area will bloom a week earlier than first believed, and the Lily Festival Week, advertised in a number of ways, to come July 21, will now be July 7 to
