Welcome To Our Schools, Youngsters

Monday, you began another term of school, and perhaps you did it much against your will—it may have seemed something like a sentence.

School should, if you look at it in the right manner, be joyful. Your inquisitive minds will there be taught the things which they seek—gain the knowledge which will be helpful in years to come.

Perhaps you may not like some subject. That's only natural—you may like one food better than another, but it takes the correct combination to do most good. It's the same way with school subjects.

Remember, you young people, you will never get more from school than you're willing to put into it—your gains will be in proportion to the effort you make—just like when you work well and earn more money at the job you may be doing.

Somewhere, back in your minds, you have plans for what you want to do in life. Right now, you are laying the foundation for that building you hope will be yours when you reach that age when you'll be out on your own—doing just what you want.

Did you ever see a foundation which was glamorous—a thing of beauty? Maybe your school may be like that, but nevertheless one is as necessary as the other—we simply can't change that.

Enter into school life with the feeling that you are building a life (call it a building if you want)—first must come the foundation (you're doing that right now). Later, as you gain age and experience, this building will take shape—you then can see what you are accomplishing. Look at your teachers as the helpers—remember, they're human, and that they, too, traveled the same road you now travel.

Ground has been broken, ready for the foundation of the new bus station, to be erected adjacent to the Vincent building. The work is in charge of Mason & Edwards, local contractors, who will also have charge of the remodeling of the building to accommodate a fountain and a gift shop, when completed.

Mrs. Berger Dahlstrom and two children returned Sunday from Klamath Falls where she visited her parents and other relatives for more than a week. Her parents plan to leave soon on a ten-months trip which will take them to Sweden.

Milo Spencer has contracted to drive the school bus from up the Chetco this year, but finds that the children have ganged up on him. It was thought that there would have to be one trip from his place and then a return trip as far as Huffman place. Instead, a couple more families have moved in near the summer bridge, and he finds he must go back to the Fielder home on the opposite side of Jack Creek. There are 23 children living on the Chetco market road, only five of whom are walking distance from the store, where the bus picks them up.

Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Duvall have sold their home near Winchuck bridge to Mr. and Mrs. Jim Shrader who will take possession soon. The Duvalls plan to go to Indiana to make their home as that is where they have many relatives. Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Seymour have as house guests, Mrs. Seymour's sister, Mrs. E. D. Bell of Portland. She and her husband came down for Labor day week-end, after which he had to return to Portland.

Andrew Jackson spent the past week-end at his home on Jack's Creek after being in the City hospital for three days with an infected hand. The infection began with a rubbed place on the side of his hand, which caused much discomfort.
