

Upper Chetco

Mrs. Frank Waldien
and Mrs. Jack Everett and daughter, Sandra of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Don Estes of the Ridge lookout left Sunday for Corvallis where he will attend O. S. C. He plans to major in botany.

Malmer Lindsley moved from Brookings to Vulcan Peak last week.

Upper Chetco School, Dist. No. 1, opened Monday with sizeable attendance. Mrs. Dougherty is the principal and will drive the school bus.

and Mrs. R. M. Barr of Lake, Calif., were week-enders at the Willard Graham ranch. Mrs. Barr is Mrs. Willard's sister.

THE O' THIS AND THAT
The rainy weather gives me an opportunity to brush the dust from my pencil and apply myself to the task of clearing up some misinformed individuals who apparently are indiscriminately tossing rumors around the community.

My turning in to the police of folks who apparently are enjoying a few nice and tender steaks.

You, I say if there are any in your mind, why don't ask the police if I turned anyone in—ask to see if my name has been on any complaint—yet! I might at least give me a chance to catch one first! To tell the truth, we've been trouble-free with spotlighting.

I wrote the article—to be sure, there were only two offenders since the July 18 issue of the Pilot. In the first case the car was out of order and we investigated, and the second was too much dust on the place, the numbers were visible.

Concerning the aforementioned, and incidentally to refresh my memory, I stated just where ranch boundaries were and we farmers as a group would appreciate it if folks'd refrain from spotlighting among stock—that we, the Waldiens, are posting "No Hunting" signs on our ranch.

At the time this was published, the Rod and Gun Club offered its service, should I desire it. However, I declined the kind offer, explaining that, for the time being, I preferred to appeal to the honor of the public in general—that I felt certain folks would respect our attitudes regarding said practices of spotlighting, hunting or shooting at random on our ranches without due thought, consideration, or permission of the owners.

Surely that explains to you why signs such as "no trespassing," "keep out," "no camping," and "no hunting" are mushrooming everywhere in this particular vicinity. People here do not want to appear unfriendly by tacking up such orders. Indeed, we've waited a long time to see some demonstration of common sense before getting out the hammer and nails. Please don't lay the blame on ye poor old hayseed!

Careless people made this bed and now they're distressed to find thorns in it. In conclusion I wish to say if, and when, I turn anyone in, my name will be on the dotted line. Look for it. Truly it is a never-ceasing wonder to me how scandal runs while truth must crawl!

"Honesty is not merely the best policy—it is a basic principle."

Would anyone be interested in writing the Upper Chetco news? If so, please contact Mr. Akers. I have sadly neglected the news end of this column, simply because I have been unable to contact members of the community, due to distance, and because I'm a very busy ranch woman. I hope someone will volunteer as news correspondent.

Author Liked Use Of His Pamphlet

E. P. Breakey, author of a recent publication which has been well distributed about the area by the West Coast Bulb Growers, Shaprack Outdoor Nurseries, and Triple S Bulb Farms, besides being published in the Pilot, was pleased to learn that his pamphlet was well received. In a letter to Ray Struebing, he said:

Ray W. Struebing, Struebing Bulb Farms, Harbor, Oregon.

Dear Mr. Struebing:

Thank you for your letter of Sept. 5, and the enclosed pamphlet.

Both your letter and the pamphlet were a most pleasant surprise. I am glad to know that my efforts are apparently making a worthwhile contribution to the development of a bulb industry on the west coast.

Would it be possible for you to obtain a dozen or 15 copies of this pamphlet and send them to me for my own use? Thanking you for this favor, I am Sincerely yours,

E. P. BREAKEY

Another Pamphlet Furnished

Ray Struebing, who furnished the Pilot with the recently-published article which was put into pamphlet form, brought the Pilot another pamphlet for publication through these columns. It may be read elsewhere in this issue.

In The Mailbox:

Editor, Pilot: The success of any public-spirited effort is dependent upon the standing of its backers in each community.

We feel that the splendid cooperation which your company has given the fire-prevention campaign of the Keep Oregon Green Association by sponsoring ads in your paper has been of great help in making the citizens of Cur-
