New Greyhound Buses Visits Here

Greyhound's latest version of "Silverline" Super-Coach was inspected by people of this area today. This is the type of bus which Pacific Greyhound officials plan to place in service on Oregon routes. Deliveries of these new buses are expected to begin within the next few months.

An important safety feature of this coach, which Greyhound is installing on buses in this territory as rapidly as possible, is the "Scotchlite" plastic trim that makes busses 'glow in the dark,' said local Greyhound representative.

It was also pointed out that some of the Silverline Super-Coaches will be equipped with a modern lavatory that is a marvel of compactness, efficiency, and sanitation.

"It is planned that the new busses, like the one we are now displaying here, will be equipped with the most advanced type of two-way radio," it was said.

Fertilizer Tips

By Robert Sloan

I wish to thank the readers of this column at this time for the splendid co-operation and encouragement shown through letters and personal contact during the past few weeks. Many of the topics discussed in this column have created some new ideas for solving personal problems encountered by growers of this area, and hope in the future will further the progress in attaining a "natural" fertilizer for lily growers.

Now that planting time has arrived and those who plant have done all they can to their ground for this planting season, Fertilizer Tips will not be published again until early spring.

Although the column will not appear in the paper, the work on the project will not cease in obtaining information pertaining to fertilization, which will be brought before the public through this column.

I still offer my help to all who are interested in starting a compost heap, and be glad to show-off my compost pile, of which I feel is a firm step in attaining a "natural" fertilizer for lilies.

Ton Of Raisins Lost To Fruit Cakes

SALEM—Any concern that has a big supply of raisins put away against the shortage (already apparent) may profit from the loss of several Oregon bakeries.

"Raisins should be kept in cool places; cold storage is best," T. M. Madsen, bakery supervisor for the state department of agriculture, warned, as he condemned about 90 30-pound boxes or raisins in several different shops. The raisins were wormy and unfit for human consumption.

Some of the operators said they had put the raisins away for holiday fruit cakes and because they were so short of help just didn't take the proper care of them.

So the raisins went to the hogs and Christmas fruit cake will be in shorter supply in some stores.

SMITH RIVER—Marriage vows were exchanged by Miss Helen Maas and Melvin Diltz Jr. of Oakland, at a lovely wedding, performed at the local Methodist church, Saturday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. E. C. Hicks officiated at an impressive double-ring ceremony, which was witnessed by a large group of relatives and friends.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Betty Moore sang "Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "Always," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Mark Wood, who also played the wedding march.

Huckleberry greenery, bouquets of white hydrangeas and gladioli decorated the church, with candleabra and white flower arrangement on altar and piano.

To the strains of the Lohengrin Bridal Chorus, the bride, given in marriage by her father, wore her sister's bridal gown of white satin bodice net yolk, full net skirt with finger-tip veil. She carried a bouquet of white gardenias and bouvardia.

She was attended by Miss Sara Mae Westbrook as bridesmaid who wore a floor-length pale pink net gown and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Lester Crook was best man and ushers were Floyd Morrison and Bob Wakefield.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Maas, where friends extended congratulations to the newlyweds. The Maas home was attractively decorated with bouquets of white flowers.

The lace-covered dining table, centered with an arrangement of asters, carnations and chrysanthemums, and the three-tier bride's cake topped with miniature bride and groom, was where guests gathered to enjoy cake and punch.

Miss Louise Maas was in charge of the guest book. Mrs. Diltz is a graduate of Del Norte High School, and has been employed for several years by General Electric at Oakland.

Following a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Diltz will make their home at Oakland where the groom is employed as diesel engineer for a dredging company.
