

While Out Shopping

By Grace Polley Stevenson

So many Brookings folks are on the building list; they all must know about the finishing gadgets at Curry County Lumber Co. They have very attractive National Cabinet Hardware. One really should not finish his country home until seeing this display of McKinley forged iron hinges, latches, pulls and handles. The dark metal has such an antique appearance. Also a very practical necessity at Kesslers is a supply of metal weather stripping. Wherever this Brookings rain penetrates the special metal weather stripping will do its work.

If we are keeping up with the times in Brookings, we must see how well established is the new Storset Cleaners and Dying establishment. Working under handicap of waiting for some of his undelivered equipment, Mr. Storset cleans drapes, blankets, curtains and all kinds of clothing. At the public entrance, one is pleased by the new cement floors, a fresh paint job and a complete fluorescent lighting system. We wish this enterprising ex-service man success in our community.

We find no local business man more rushed than Claude Goldizen at the Brookings Garage. The Goldizens, father and son, must turn away as much business as they accept. Their great handicaps are limited space and difficulty in obtaining parts. The long continued strikes, scarcity of lead, and the overwhelming demand of new car manufacturers all contribute to repairing difficulties. This community appreciates the services of such artisans as the Goldizens and wish they could get larger quarters.

It is well worth while to become acquainted with Brookings' busy little corner, conducted by W. S. "Chad" Chadwick. He sells and takes subscriptions for all popular magazines and keeps the Portland and San Francisco papers on hand. At the adjoining counter he dispenses ice cream by dish, cone, pint or quart. The sale of tobacco, cigars and cigarettes makes his business complete. Mr. Chadwick calls himself an old-timer, too old for comment.

We must keep up with the times! If we are eighteen or eighty, if it's summer shade or winter fireside, we must learn to enjoy relaxing comfort of a swing rocker. Hendricks Furniture Store has them, three distinct styles, upholstered in tapestries, mohair and damasks, in blue, wine and neutral tones. If our home is the commonest or the most elegant, there is always an appropriate swing rocker.

Gun Club Enjoys "Feed" Tuesday

With tables sagging under the quantity and variety of good things to eat, Chetco Rod & Gun Club, Tuesday evening, enjoyed a pre-Christmas feast, and dance.

Members of the club, and invited guests, aggregating over 120 ate up (all they could) of 20 turkeys, dressing, cranberry sauce, and all other things which go to make up a feast, including pumpkin pie.

Wives of members cooked, at their homes, all the things for the meal. The hall, elaborately decorated, was the work of Mrs. Sandbo, who put in hours on the chore.

Following the meal, Eddie Desjardin and his orchestra, of Crescent City, played for a dance, interspersed with handouts of turkey sandwiches. The party broke up about 1:30, after people became miserable from the undue exercise following such a feed.

Garden Club Will Enjoy Christmas Party Today

The annual Christmas party of the Azalea Garden club will be held at the Grange hall, this afternoon at two.

A unique and interesting program, entitled: "With Candle and Bough", arranged by Miss Ruth Newton and Miss Mary Cavitt, will be enjoyed.

The Christmas story will be told, accompanied by members of the club singing Christmas carols.

There will be a gift exchange, the result of this year's gardening. Yes, and Santa Claus will be there, too.

Bride Had Wreck Mon., Near Potocnick Shed

"Hard luck" stalked Mrs. Vern Ireton, a bride since Sunday, when Monday, headed south on highway, 101 she ran into Frank Pallady as he was about to turn off the highway at the Potocnick bulb shed.

An aunt of the bride, passenger in the car, was slightly hurt by the accident, although no great damage was done to the Pallady car, it was reported.
