

Grub or Heel Flies Are Easily Controlled Now

It is now considered old-fashioned to have cattle showing grubs on their backs this time of the year as the grub or heel fly is easily controlled. The grub in the back of the animal not only has the irritation and general loss of health, but also reduces the value of the hide in beef cattle. In dairy cattle the big loss occurs during the summer when the adult flies cause high producing animals to run frantically over the pasture, generally decreasing the fattening and milk production of the summer months.

Livestock Freight Rates Have Generally Increased

Effective Jan. 1, live haul rates on livestock in carloads in this state and intrastate in Oregon will be increased 15% as a result of the I. C. C. decision based on information at a recent query.

Truck rates have increased 18% and rail and water carriers increased 20%.

Cost of marketing will be studied at the Curry county livestock association meeting, scheduled for next Monday, January 13, at the court house at Gold Beach, according to Harvey Crook, president of the association. With livestock prices approaching a general decline, it may be necessary for farmers to use trucks in the moving of their own livestock to market.

According to a report given at western Oregon Livestock Association meeting, at Salem, recently, practically all organized groups in the state are on record favoring the revision of Oregon laws. Universal truck regulations are thought to be the trade barrier which now prevents trucks authorized to operate in California, Oregon and Idaho from operating over our highways except under emergency war-time permits. This trade barrier has caused Oregon livestock owners to lose millions of dollars in net returns realized on livestock all have shipped to market.

High School Quintets Split With Port Orford

While the B squad of Brookings high school was barely nosed out at Port Orford last Friday, 9 to 8, it was the A squad which really took it on the chin, losing by a large margin.
