

RESOLVED

To Build A Better Community

WHAT BETTER RESOLUTION can we of this community make at the beginning of this New Year than to resolve to build a better community? To do this, every citizen must take an interest in his fellow citizens. To do this properly, active membership in the Brookings-Harbor chamber of commerce.

OUR MERCHANTS, business and professional men for example, can thereby discover new and better ways to serve their customers and the people of the community. Housewives should remember that every dollar spent away from home helps some other community other than our own, so let them resolve, to also become members of the chamber of commerce, and to make every possible purchase here so the money represented by their purchases can go to work to build up the home community.

AT THE SAME TIME, better to make this community more desirable to live in, let everyone become members of the local Parent-Teachers Association, to strive, at all times and in every way to advance the local schools that these may be better than any of all surrounding communities.

TO SUPPLY THE THINGS our country and this community so desperately need, we must have increased production. Our workers, therefore, can resolve to give a full day's pay and arbitrate any difficulties they may have with employers rather than resort to strikes and shut downs.

OUR RURAL PEOPLE patriotically worked all their land overtime during the war in order to produce all possible food stuffs. Too little time could be spent in problems of soil conservation and development of new crops for this area. With ending of the war, more time can now be devoted toward restoring the fertility of the soil and the application of better farming methods, addition of new crops, which will benefit not only the farmers, but the whole community as well. Better to understand this program, everyone (butcher, baker and candlestick maker) should become members of the Chamber of commerce, there to discuss problems concerning the community.

MORE INTEREST in schools, churches and all civic-minded clubs and organizations can be shown by most of the citizens of this area. These institutions and organizations play a vital part not only in the present social and cultural activities of this community, but in building the character of the kind of a community we are to have in the future. Let's all resolve to take a greater interest and give more moral support to these important character-building groups.
