TALENT HOUR SCORES

Talent Hour, sponsored by the Floras Willow Club, for benefit of the athletic club, was one of the most outstanding entertainments of the season when a big crowd attended. Twenty-two children and ten adults entered, with Kenneth Thompson as master of ceremonies. Participants came from Myrtle Point, Bandon, Sixes and Port Orford, as well as from this area.

Prizes awarded were: reading, "Little Orphan Annie," by Velma Ann White; Swedish schottish dance by Wilbur and Judy Jensen. Adults: reading, "The Great American Tragedy" by Vera Clark; "The Son of the Beach," by Kenneth Thompson, and a song "The Village Blacksmith," by Benn Miller.

RETURNS FROM TRIP EAST—

Joe Stankavitch returned to him home this week from a trip to eastern cranberry bogs. He was accompanied on the trip by Archie Hillstrom, of Coos Bay, who is a partner, Matt Stankavitch, Ben Flaxel, of North Bend and others in connection with the newly-developed Stankavitch Cranberry picking machine. He reports a successful trip. Mr. Hillstrom, whose hobby is taking colored pictures, did not return home, but is continuing on a southern route and will take in the gulf about New Orleans, via Los Angeles. The men took a travelogue of their trip, and pictures of the various bogs of Cape Cod and New Jersey, by airplane.

Scouting

By Jimmy Lytle

Cubbing is very good training for young boys. It isn't like an army, but a place where boys can go and have a lot of fun. Besides fun, the boys are to do handiwork, such as metal and wood-work.

As one progresses, he goes on to learn more. Work is the deeper and more interesting. Cubbing is preparing the boy for scouting, which forms a boy a real man.

Back about 1932 people in this area were against scouting believing it was teaching boys to fight. Since then that idea has been forgotten.

Scouting prepares a boy for emergencies such as saving people from water, from fire, broken bones, and panic. Boys learn to act naturally, and to help.

The scout motto is: "Be Prepared." The cub motto is: "A Good Turn Daily." It shows that most lives have been saved by people who have been a Boy Scout or Girl Scout.

People must never confuse scouting as being a part of an army.

Mrs. Molly Smith and Louel Reed left Tuesday for Medford where Mr. and Mrs. Reed live.

Russell Hibbard of the University of California, Berkeley, a visitor of Mr. and Mrs. Hibbard this week. Russ is a sophomore at the university and a nephew of Mr. Hibbard who was here on his spring vacation.
