Pine Cone Books Three Show Hits

Of all the thrill-swept drama packed into 20th Century-Fox's colorful and exciting technicolor film, "Buffalo Bill," none held more interest and richer associations for the residents of Kanab, Utah, where the picture was filmed, than the re-enactment of a scene that took place in 1863. The picture, which opens Friday at the Pine Cone Theatre, stars Joel McCrea, Maureen O'Hara, and Linda Darnell, with Thomas Mitchell, Edgar Buchanan and Anthony Quinn heading the brilliant supporting cast.

At the scene of the war council to be re-enacted there were some 50 tepees and a council circle. As Cheyenne Chief Yellow Hand, Anthony Quinn—

One must see this historical story since words never portray like pictures. Rehabilitation of three honorably discharged war heroes furnishes the theme of RKO's dramatic romance, "Till the End of Time," starring Dorothy McGuire, Guy Madison, Robert Mitchum and Bill Williams, coming Sunday at the Pine Cone.

Madison, as a lad who joined the marines straight from school, finds himself at odds with his doting parents and their well-laid plans for him. They cannot understand that he needs a little time to accustom himself to being a civilian. Love at first sight result from his meeting a young widow, played by Miss McGuire, who, with infinite patience, helps him solve his difficulties.

Three great stars meet again in that impudent, bawdy milieu known as the Bowery when Wallace Beery, George Raft and Jackie Cooper return in their all-time, good-time screen hit, "The Bowery," which opens next Wednesday at the Pine Cone.

Generally regarded in the gay '90s as the "livest mile on the face of the globe," the Bowery was celebrated for its honky tonks, saloons, Chinatown and its tong wars, "resorts of iniquity," buxom chorus girls and the so breezy goings-on of the colorful characters of the famous thoro-fare.
